

What About Appomattox?

Are we doing the best farming in this county that we are capable of? Have we done it to the past? In short, all, what are we going to do in the future? And when are we going to begin doing our very best, our utmost, to put Appomattox on the map as one of Virginia's foremost agricultural counties? The answer to this last question is primarily for the farmers, their wives and children; but the answer also needs to be considered with it. In fact, every citizen in this county needs to consider himself with what the future of Appomattox shall be.

The time is now when we should make an inventory of ourselves and our county and see just where we stand. Let's consider the county's place in the future. There is a little pure bred live stock on our farms; on many of the farms there is no stock except the working animals. The yields of wheat, corn and grass are below the average. But why is this condition true? The county is well located, the land is well watered by many small streams; soil will produce a great variety of crops and it never fails to respond generously to good intelligent treatment. If our land has in any case failed to feed and keep us it is because we have failed miserably in doing our duty to it.

So, today, all of us who are loyal to our county and interested in her development, highly realize that we will do our part to make Appomattox county smile and wave us with real comfort and prosperity. Here it is what we need to do for our county—feed the soil and tickle it to yield us bumper crops, export the hillside and gain with grain and clover, stock its pastures with pure bred live stock—the best that can be had—drive out the no-account trash, get the land to frequently build with us at our expense. Let us build roads over which we can travel—no matter what the weather—and transport our produce; and by these highways let us build homes, real homes, homes that shall reflect property and wealth, that shall be a joy to ourselves and an inspiration to our visitors. Let us build schools that will be real institutions of learning, a worthy force for higher education and our real source of strength; and by this means remove from our midst ignorance, poverty and want. Let us centralize and combine our one-on-one schools into larger and stronger units.

We can do all these things, and many more, if we will to do them. We should get together and pull and push and boost with all our might.

To assist the county in its development we have an Agricultural Experiment in the High School, supported by the State and Federal Governments; a County Agent, and a Home Demonstration Agent. The times and services of these Extension Agents belong to the people of the county and the people of the county are urged to make use of their services and get in touch with the High School's Agricultural and Home Economics Departments and make use of their aid.

L. D. HAMMER, Instructor in Agriculture.

Stonewall

The young people of the neighborhood were very highly entertained Friday night, by Miss Irma Henry.

We are very glad to learn that Mr. Lyle Childs, who has been very ill, is convalescent, and hope he will soon be out again.

Misses Janie Thornhill and Eleanor Davidson spent last week in Lynchburg, with Dr. W. B. Thornhill.

Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Jennings' house caught fire last Thursday night, but as luck would have it, a very little damage was done. The origin of the fire is unknown, but it is thought to have been set by rats.

Miss Nellie Robertson was the work end of guest of Miss Elsie Carson.

Mr. Robert Thornhill, Miss Nellie Robertson, Miss Annie and Elsie Carson spent Sunday with Mrs. Wiley Harding.

We are very much gratified to hear of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Harding talking of moving to Detroit Mich. We hope it is not true but if so, we wish him the very best of luck. Let us hear from you sometimes, "Old boy."
